If you look into the government's balanced business chart carefully, you will need a spyglass to see the boom-sprouts. What you will see clearly is that business has failed to manifest an expansion trend during the first quarter of the year. Instead, it has encountered difficulty clinging to its established winter level.

The irrepressible stock market has had something to do with creating that impression. Improvement last winter in building prospects and in durable goods first encouraged that line of expert thought.

STATUS This seasonally adjusted index of industrial production has declined from a temporarily abnormal level of 98 per cent in January to a more reasonable 94 per cent level in March. Unofficially, actually, there was no change in the general industrial output during these three months. The decrease in the seasonally adjusted figures merely represented a failure to improve in accordance with sea-

Complete figures for January and February show that manufacturing production was exactly the same in those two months. Mineral production was up slightly due to the abnormal winter demand for coal.

When the official March figures are compiled, they will disclose a slight decrease in manufacturing output caused by the flood. It hurt steel output in Pittsburgh and Wheeling and some production in New England. The general national average was about the same as in January and February.

What it all adds up to is the fact that industry in 1936 is holding its own in the face of snow and floods.

WAR THREAT Underneath all the public boom talk you will find that a few experts are getting depressed. This is mainly to their war fears.

There is one well-known prognosticator who is moaning in his weekconfidential service that war will bring a sharp stock market receson. He guessed the drouth right and has a minor following.

Best official seers here agree that a European war would be depressing, but they do not agree that war will come within six months. An outbreak in Europe would probably cause an immediate withdrawal of gold from this country. But foreign purchases for war purposes would undoubtedly result in a return of all the withdrawn gold and more.

The neutrality legislation implies that we will not sell abroad in case of war, but everyone here knows we will. However, sales will be limited to the amount of gold and silver available abroad for purchases. Extension of credits, such as characterized the last war, is considered out of the question. Americans are not going to buy any more foreign bonds to finance such purchases as long as the present generation has the memory of having been bit before. This is an important phase to be considered. It has induced most of the business authorities here to advise caution, at least. PRICES The recent drop in prices was due to a decrease in farm and food prices. Industrial prices have remained stable for five

BY RALPH T. JONES. Fearfully waiting,

Light a cigarette. Turn the ignition on to check on the gas in the tank. Turn it off again and then polish the steering wheel a little with the heel of the hand.

Couple of fellows stop to chat on the sidewalk. Don't know them. Look as though they might be young lawyers, salesmen, preachers—most anything. Well dressed. Clean looking. Say, about 35 years, each. Maybe Legionnaires discussing the program for the next lunch meeting.
One of them takes a match and draws it across the other's cheek and neck, as though tracing a scar.

Wonder if they're talking about Robert Lee, the "Earl of Pelham"?
Or Flanagan, that convict murder defendant in federal court? Both have scars something along the line traced.

And so, home.

These flowers of March! These heroic little petals that venture upon these windswept days! Have you seen. the gorgeous tapestries of the south Georgia swamps this March? Have you walked in the woodlands to enjoy the tiny little flowers that peep through the dead grass? Have you stooped low to catch the beauty of a violet?

Make you up a list. You will enjoy it. And I dare say you will have a deeper appreciation of this boisterous mouth of March. It will help you to forget the chapped lips and the stinging cheeks which her windy days the still have a gone for nothing. Well, guess it's up to the weatherman whether we have a good laws or not, this year.

FAIR ENOUGH BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

LONDON, March 27.

a apolis.

A sentry of one of the regiments of guards stands by his sentry box. He wears a scarlet jacket with white and gold trimmings, although he is only a buck private, and he stands just so, with his head tilted back and his middle sucked up inside, as they say in the army. Even in repose he wouldn't have much belly, though, for if you disregard the sphendor of the uniform and look at the soldier you notice that he is only a tall, limber, pink-faced kid of maybe 20 years.

Now and again some gadget trips a

Now and again some gadget trips a gear under the sentry's gilt buttons and he goes stiffly into action, shouldering his musket in so many counts dering his musket in so many counts. Then he stomps his heels on the concrete walk and sets off along his post, swinging his free arm in a certain way, until he meets another sentry coming toward him. When they come face to fare they bank their heels on the pavement, almost kicking themselves in the pants with their high leg action, turn source about and leg action, turn square about and march back to their little outbuildings;

The council of the League of Nations was having a meeting at St. James' palace. Half a dozen London James' palace. Half a dozen London bobbies of enormous stature attood about the courtyard regulating traffic and herding back a small gathering of inquisitive civilians as the politicians of the council rolled up in huge Daimler cars driven by very correct English chauffeurs, each car bearing on its windshield as a sort of passport a small white sticker with the letters "L. C." glaring forth in red. Beneath these initials were the words "League Council" in little letters.

The decreases are at least partly due to abandonment of the processing tax. Heaviest decreases were noticed in meats and meat products, where the processing tax was a strong price influence.

If no new processing taxes are written into the new tax bill, this trend may continue mildly.

ESTIMATES Unofficial figures for March are uncertain. The flood has made these difficult to estimate. The steel rate, for instance, dropped 3 points the week of the flood. But auto production has started soaring. The return of summer weather brought heavy orders. Production may go as high as 400,000 cars this month, which will be about 100,000 over February. The weekly rate has been run up to 96,000. It was around 70,000 in February.

BUILDING All the building materials industries are enjoying a brisk so an unofficial 48 in March, the demand for lumber, paints, roofins, flooring is up. Cement production was about the same. You have only to compare the building contracts index with previous years to get an idea of the much improved condition of that industry. It has a long way to go yet.

A digest of the figures revealed in the speech shows that the Governor considered it necessary to go to extremes early this week to obtain cash on checks paid to the revenue commission by the oil companies. It is presumed that the portion of funds in banks not tied up in litigation is deposited in those banks which have been

Of the cash on hand about $2,000,000 was obtained this week from the gasoline taxes, income taxes and other levies collected by the revenue commission. Shortly after assuming his dictatorship the Governor is known to have had nearly $6,000,000 in cash which was depleted to about $1,500,000 by the first of this week.

As in previous speeches and statements the Governor attacked Clark Howell with the editors of other state dailies charging that they were all on

Discussing the situation from his viewpoint, tht Governor said that three other states during the Civil War, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Illi-Connecticut, Knode Island and Amois had gone through without an appropriations bill. He added that he considered his proclamation of Febcuary 17 "an appropriation by law" and declared that the refusal of Compand declared that the refusal of Compand the Compand that the

During his attacks on the newspapers and in his discussion of the state fituation, the Governor declared that G. B. Carreker, named in Harrison's stead, and J. B. Daniel, named in Hamilton's stead, are de jure instead of de facto officials as they are called n the press.

The Governor, in his discussion the legality of Carreker and Daniel, declared that all of the judges of Geor-gia have recognized Daniel to such an extent that they have accepted their salaries from him as state treasurer.

The Governor's speech was the only noteworthy event of a day in which his aids in the department of law mapnis aids in the department of law half-ped their fight on various court ac-tions pending against the dictatorship and the state awaited a decision from Judge Lee B. Wyatt on a case he has under advisement in which offieek to enjoin Daniel from function-

Newspapers during the day quoted Ward Morehouse. New York reporter, as saying that Talmadge told him he intends to seek re-election as governments. Intends to seek re-netton for in September and run against Sen-ator Walter F. George in 1938. This the Governor vehemently denied, add-ing that Morehouse had never given ing that Morehouse had never given Atlanta reporters any such information. There has been considerable speculation as to what Talmadge intends to do. Some believe he will ask a third term as governor. Others believe he will oppose Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., but as far as can be learned Talmadge's closest friends do not know what he intends to do, if he himself has made a decision. e Senator Richard B.

a de facto treasurer but a de jure treasurer.

And, right here, let's explain these terms: A de facto officer is one by virtue of the fact only that he holds office, occupies the office and performs the functions of the office.

A de jure officer is one who holds the office according to the terms of the law providing for the office.

But what do these smart Atlanta bank lawyers do? They advised George B. Hamilton consents to it on the advice of one of the lawyers for the advice of one of the lawyers for the Fulton National Bank. Bonds Removed.

So, they illegally take $7,000,000 worth of bonds out of the vaults of the state treasury and carry them over and put them in the vaults of a bank so that bank can bring suit with other Atlanta banks to hold millions of dollars of the taxpayers money on deposit.

The only effect that an injunction could have on the Revenue Department and the comptroller general not to collect tax money from banks or oil companies would be to divert it and leave it in the banks, or in the hands of the oil companies, when by law it belongs to the state of Georgia.

Crackers Blanked, 5-0; Face Macks at Ponce de Leon Today

Mr. Eddie Moore and our brave lads, the Crackers, will arrive on the scene this morning along with the charges of the venerable Connie Mack.

Mr. Moore will be surprised, no doubt, to learn that during the absence of the team in spring training at Gulfport, the fans have been managing the team quite furiously.

There are several thousand managers in Atlanta. And each one has decided the Crackers need pitching and maybe an outfielder. Mr. Moore, of course, is working desperately with the St. Louis Cardinals, trying to cook up a deal whereby Phillip Weintraub will come to our town for the season. The Cardinals started off by asking a mere $15,000. But Mr. Earl Mann and Mr. Moore have been whittling on that sum. It may be that Phillip Weintraub will be with us soon. There is at least a glimmer of hope.

CONNIE MACK.

There is $5,000 waiting for any baseball owner who has a pitcher to sell. The Crackers will pay that much for one who can win 16 or so games this season.

The Cracker owners haven't attempted to disguise the need for pitchers. The outfield may go along although with Joe Hutcheson ill and late reporting, there may have to be some change in the outfield. Hutcheson was the most doubtful member of the outfield and Moore was especially anxious to have a look at him in spring training.

It is barely possible the appearance of the Athletics will be as interesting as the first appearance of those Crackers.

It seems that Connie Mack has everything he needs except pitching and catching. It is a situation comparable with starting buggy riding without a horse, but the old gentleman is reported to be hopeful about it. Harry Kelley, who won 23 games for the Crackers last season and who is 30 years old or a month or so away from that age, is the most promising rookie in the

Mr. Mack, who is just 43 years older than Harry Kelley, sold off all his stars and is going along with a lot of youngsters. One of them is an Atlanta boy, Bubber Yarter. In 1929 Bubber Yarter was playing ball with the Inman Park Cardinals, the best sandlot team ever developed in Atlanta.

The Crackers should take Mr. Mack's remnants.

It so happens there are two kinds of golf-golf and tournament golf. And while Bobby Jones has been playing some very good golf he hasn't been playing any tournament golf at all.

He faces a field which is made up of the finest professionals in golf. And all of them are in shape and possess a seasoned game. Tournament golf can be seasoned only by tournament golf. And Bobby Jones hasn't had any. Which is why it is rather unfair to him to suggest he has back his form of 1930.

He may finish well up. If he finishes in the first 10, or even the first 12, it will be rather ample proof that he is still as great a golfer as the game knows. Because a man who can remain out of competition for six He faces a field which is made up of the finest professionals cause a man who can remain out of competition for six years and then score within the first 12 in a tournament such as the Masters, would be playing some very phenomenal golf.

For weeks now, I have been collecting all sorts of voodoo stuff and I will be there trying it all in behalf of Mr. Bobby Jones. For no good reason I have become a fan about this, and so I will be trudging along after him next week, muttering

TECH GRID TEAM ENDS PRACTICE IN GAME TODAY

Tharpe and Dodd Seek Revenge Over Alexander's 'Greens.'

Georgia Tech's spring football drills will be ended at 2 o'clock this afternoon on Grant field when Coach W. A. Alexander's "Greens" play Mack Tharpe and Bobby Dodd's "Golds." A small admission will be charged and the proceeds will be used to defray expenses of Tech's minor spring sports. When asked about his football team for next year, Coach Alexander said: "We have nothing up our sleeves this year. Every ablebodied man we have will be in uniform and while I wish they wouldn't, there is no way to keep them from using every play we

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., March 27.—(AP)—The west coast opens the nation's baseball season tomorrow.

With advance enthusiasm and ticket sales giving club owners an optimism they have not known since the palmy days of half a dozen years ago, the Pacific Coast league will start its 34th pennant chase in four California cities.

It is the first league of the country to open its parks.

San Francisco's Seals, champions last year, open against their home town rivals, the Missions. Advance ticket sales, largest in seven years, forecast a turnout of 15,000 fans.

Another 15,000 were expected to root in the season at Los Angeles, with the Angels opposing the San Diego Padres, until last year, the Hollywood Stars.

Fair weather was forecast. Last season's openers in the same cities were rained out at a financial loss of thousands of dollars.

A new league president, four new club managers and two different club set-ups, were factors expected to help stimulate interest this season. The regular season of 24½ weeks will be climaxed by a play-off among the four highest teams.

Connie's New Team Opens Atlanta's Home Schedule at 2:30 O'Clock.

GULFPORT, Miss., March 27.— New York pitchers were very Scotch about base hits this afternoon and the Giants blanked the champion Crackers, 5 to 0, sweeping the Grape-fruit league on the sweeping the Grape-

Harry Gumbert, right-hander secured by the Giants from the Baltimore Orioles, did not allow a single hit in the four innings he worked on a wet field.

John Leonardo followed and gave up only five hits in the other five innings of a ball game that saw our Crackers and the Giants hustling through a regulation contest in one hour and 25 minutes, which should be a spring record.

The original idea of Manager Eddie Moore had been to pitch Bud Thomas against the Giants today. But a couple of hours before game time a sudden squall, followed by a persistent icy wind that whistled through one's whiskers, caused Acting Manager Dick Niehaus to use rookies on the mound.

The games was delayed some 30 minutes because of the condition of the field and the uncertainty as to whether Manager Bill Terry wanted his Giants to play under such conditions.

BIG CROWD.

BIG CROWD.

The townspeople turned out in such number, however, that he decided to let the show go on, and so the two teams went out hustling and the old ball game was over an hour and 25 minutes later. Despite the biting weather there was a paid attendance of 550. The Giants won on a scoring spree in the second inning after two men were away, Danning, Bartell and Gumbert singled in succession. Danning, cather, scored on Pitcher Gumbert's wallop. Then Moore, left fielder, crashed a triple to left, driving in Bartell and Gumbert.

This was the only bad inning ex-perienced by young West, who paid no attention to the fact that he was facing probably one of the best clubs in the National league.

The Giants scored their other two runs in the eighth of Huey. Only one was earned. Davis doubled to left and scored on Johnny Hill's wild throw of Martin's sharp blow, the latter going to second. Danning drove in Martin with a single to right.

The Crackers came with a neat double play in the sixth with the bases loaded and one away. Melott drew the only walk issued by West, Leslie singled and Martin was safe on Buster Chatham's error. Davis was out on a fly to left, following Ott.

Danning was the next hitter. He hit sharply to Lipscomb and the proposed rally was ended. Lipscomb threw to Chatham, forcing Martin, and Chatham rifled the ball to Al Browne, who replaced Alex Hooks in the latter innings, retiring Danning with room to spare.

The Giants likewise ended ple of Cracker rallies with plays. Harris and Al Brow

Then Paul Richards hit a bounder to Dick Bartell, Bartell threw to Bergess Whitehead, forcing Browne and Whitehead slammed the ball to first, retiring Richards.

The second Giant double play was made from the outfield. There was a bit of comedy attached to the way Al Browne happened to be safe at first.

AINTREE, Eng., March 27.—(P)—A chorus from 250,000 throats welled over Aintree's sun-drenched country-side today as Major Noel Furlong's Reynoldstown, gallant nine-year-old Irish jumper, repeated his 1935 triumph in the 98th running of the Grand National Steeplechase and equalled a record that had stood for 66 years.

At least we had hopes of staking off the left-overs but now they are being gobbled up by the go-getters who are taking advantage of leap year. It's another case of 'to him that hath shall be given and to him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath."

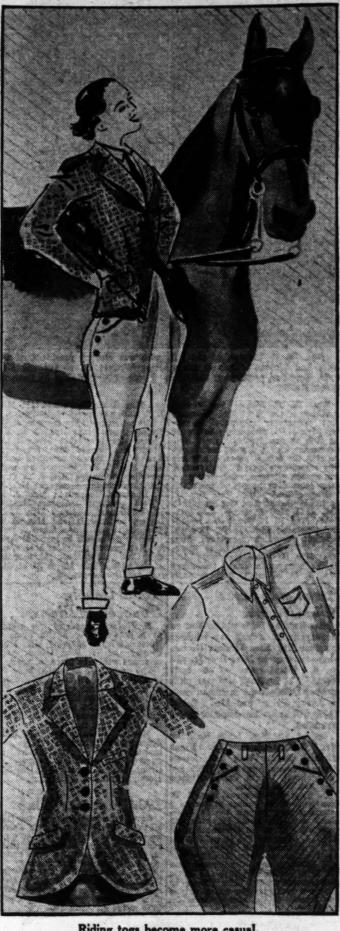

Take heart, gals, leap year is a fine subject for making jokes and it gives you opportunity to invite a lad to squire you to a dance occasionally, but leap year doesn't change male nature, which has been the same for many a day. Masculine preference is for chasing, bagging the game and toting it home. A gal can do for a lad what the native guide does for the big game. The guide leads him on, backs him up but he always manages to make the huntsman believe he has located the quarry and that he is amply able to aim properly at the right time, shoot squarely and bag the game without assistance. He makes it easy for the sportsman but he never lets the sportsman know he is making it easy.

There is nothing new in this. Since the beginning of our time women have been making it easy for men to pop the question, leading them on, back-ing them up, pushing them over the top with every sort of trick that is their stock in trade. Grandmother's method was quite different from that method was quite different from that of the modern miss but it had the same end in view. Grandmother pretended to be sweet and simpering. She always held sewing on her lap and carried a bunch of keys at her belt. These were indications that she had mastered the domestic arts and also that she was capable of complete submission to masculine domination. With mission to masculine domination. With all her shrinking violet shyness, she was urging her suitor over the top, nushing with all her might and was urging her suitor over the top, pushing with all her might and main. And of course he never guessed it.

modern miss' method is dif-because the modern lad is on the hunt primarily for a good companion, a good looker and a smart dresser, rather than for a good housekeeper, seamstress and stay-at-home. And oh how the modern miss works to qualify,

She studies the tastes of the boy-friend and pretends that hers are identical. She feigns interest in subjects that bore her to tears. She buys books and ploughs through pages that give her the blind staggers. She reads financial sections of newspapers and memorizes what she cannot under-stand. She dances all night when her stand. She dances all night when her dogs hurt and sits by the fire when she is dying to dance. She has just begun to take out her tricks. She paints rosy pictures of her passion for home and babies. She grows eloquent about her ability to be satisfied with simple pleasures and be contented with poverty, if only she has love. To hear her tell it she can bake the best cake ever baked, broil a steak that makes the mouth water, look well in the cheapest clothes, stretch a dollar further than anybody in the world, hold her temper and her tongue and adjust herself to anything that may come. Then she has done her utmost to squeeze out the question she wants to squeeze out the question she wants answered. And if she is clever she

With any highly restricted diet, you run a risk of getting insufficient vitamins, minerals and protein, the food elements essential to health. The fewer the foods included in the diet, the more deficient it is apt to be. Of course, there are exceptions, and among them is the banana and skimmed milk diet. This regime constitutes an adequate diet except for a deficiency in Vitamin B and iron. These elements, however, can be omitted for short periods without harm.

The chief objection to going on such a diet is that you must very shortly come off it, and that it does not improve your food habits. While you are on the diet you lose weight, but when you return to your usual menu you are likely to be so glad to have "regular food" again that your old habits of eating (which were responsible for your overweight in the first place) are stronger than ever. NATIONAL CHAMPIONSHIPS. The national contract bridge cham-pions will be decided in a tournament which begins in New York today and will continue through the week. This is the third year it has been held.

The grand national plan of holding annual championship tournaments was put into operation in 1933 by a group of men, including the late Milton C. Work, the greatest of all the auction bridge authorities, and myself. Until that time so-called national tournaments had been attended only by players from New York and a few other large cities east of Chicago. We decided that the general public should be given an opportunity to compete in these tournaments, from which they previously had been excluded by the fact that their geographical locations made it too expensive to *ravel all the way to New York just to play bridge. The plan we began involved running a number of preliminary tournaments, charging a small card fee, of which part was set aside to pay the expenses of the winners to New York. In the first grand national tournament, held in 1934, 44 players from all parts of the country, including Oregon, New Mexico, the central and southern states and Massachusetts, competed with New Yorkers for the championship titles. (The New York players won the championships, however.)

Buck fingered through the pile of teletype messages, records of phone calls, and reports of agents. At last he pulled forth a sheet of paper.

"Yeah," came finally, "Kroft and two other men have been ordered there from the Butte field office. Too early to expect any results."

It was the beginning of a dead spot in the investigation, galling to the inspector and his comrade after what had seemed to them the true opening by which they might drive a wedge into this mystery. Frenzied work at San Francisco yielded nothing new. Reports from Reno indicated that Sociable Joe had received a telegraphic answer from Jane Bronson merely stating that she was home and safe—and that he seemed to be doing nothing about it. Although we know that the is no larger when it rises than at the zenith of its position i at the zenith of its position in the pictures, finger prints, and descriptions of the wanted gang went into the hands of police, sheriffs, marshals, constables, lobbies of postoffices, the hands of informants and every other possible place where they might assist in bringing about the capture of the Lurch-McKeevor mob. Nothing happened.

Investigations at Billings, supported by the identification orders, showed that the gang once had been in the town, but that nothing was known of their recent movements. Thus things were dragging one afternoon when to bloom by the great process known as "irrigation."

Dams were built across rivers by the government. Water was stored up, and was made to flow through canals. Out from the sides of each canal, long ditches known as "laterals" take some of the water to use for growing crops. On the Bevernick ranch are hundreds of trees which bear oranges, grapefruit and lemons—fruit is picked at every season of the year. There are also olive trees, fig trees and date palms.

To get back to the desert plants—I saw many kinds of cactus, along with sage brush and certain small trees. The trees ranged in height from 5 to 15 feet; some were hardly more than shrubs. They included the mesquite and palo verde.

Mesquite trees have narrow trunks and dozens of slender branches. Sometimes they grow to a height of 25 or 30 feet, but none of those I saw were that high. The wood seems to be fit for nothing except firewood. The branches are thorn-covered, but cattle feed on the seed pods, or "long beans." In former days, the Indiana ground the seed to make meal which they used for food.

"Palo verde" is Spanish for "green"

Like the other trees of the desert, it has thorns. The thorns grand mimals. They seewed to keep off mule deer and white-tailed deer, of former days bettered than to keep off cattle of the present time.

Only one Arizona desert plant, so are as I could learn, is without thorns. That is the greasewood, a bushy shrub which reaches the height of a few feet. It has green foliage, but cartle will not eat it—for they don't like the "trees somewhat from grazing animals. They somewhat from served to keep off cattle of the present time.

A LITTLE SATURDAY TALK.

Walking across a piece of Arizona desert last month, I looked with interest at the plants I saw growing there. With me, acting as a guide, was my friend, Fred Bevernick, who owns a fruit ranch several miles from Phoenix. His ranch is just at the edge of the desert, and was once part of the desert, but it has been made to bloom by the great process known as "irrigation."

Dams were built across rivers by the government. Water was stored up, and was made to flow through canals. AVERAGE PRICE. NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—
(AP) The average price of middling cotton today at 10 southern spot markets was 11.67 cents a pound; government subsidy 0.33 of a cent a pound.

NEW ORLEANS, March 27.—(P) The trading trend of cotton futures was sharply divided today with new crop months gaining 9 to 13 points, while old crop options were net unchanged to 2 points lower.

The uncertain price movements were attributed to technical developments in the market. The tight spot situation and the belief that the pool might hold their old crop futures for price appreciation lent buoyancy to May and July. While on the other hand the lack of information on acreage in the new crop tended to restrict speculative sentiment in this division of the market.

July. While on the other hand the lack of information on acreage in the new crop tended to restrict speculative sentiment in this division of the market.

Speculative interests, anxious to ride the market up if May and July approximate the spot level as did the March option, were important buyers in the nears today. The trade also bought in these positions and sold new crop months for hedging purposes.

At the end of trading May sold at the highs for the day of 11.17 and July was at its best price of the session, 10.82. October was 2 points off at 10.14; December was down a point at 10.12 and January was net unchanged at 10.13. Spots advanced with near options. ### Market Outlook By MAX BUCKINGHAM.

(Copyright, 1986, by United Press.) NEW YORK, March 27.—(UP)-The French franc today dropped to the level where gold shipments from gales (In 100s). Div. High.Low.Close.Chg. France to the United States may be made with profit.

The drop brought weakness to the stock market. Short selling and some easing out by overloaded longs resulted in prices dropping one to more than three points in the general list. The decline was orderly, however, and volume light as the steady recession set in.

The French situation has become an increasingly important market factor in the last week. Accompanying the decline today were such developments as:

1—Rumors that France is planning a gold embargo.

2—French government securities are being sold the Paris bourse—the sellers switching into international issues.

Produce

OURTS & CO.—We believe the drouth a rea too small and estimated damage too premature to affect the world price of wheat. Therefore, we continue moderately bearish.

FENNER & BEANE—Weakness in Minneapolis was a late depression factor.

BEER & CO.—The only excuse for strength in corn we can see is the falling of receipts which probably is due mostly to had conditious of roads.

DOBES & CO.—Believe the new crop futures should be sold on all strong spots, but the political situation abroad bears close watching.

The sharp February drop, greatest for any month since 1931, showed the new year's first results of the Safety Council's campaign to cut motoring deaths 35 per cent in five years.

Counteracting January's increase, the figures for last month brought 1936 three per cent under the corresponding total for 1935. The comparison:

ED ("OFF-THE-RECORD") REED'S HOROSCOPE

Ed Reed, young cartoonist, whose feature. "Off the Record," appears daily on the editorial page of The Constitution, has within a year and half had his cartoon syndicated in 70 metropolitan newspapers. He was born in Paris, Texas, December 13, 1907. Ed Reed has talent, courage and determination. His stars reveal these qualities, as well as many other interesting traits. The Sun rising in Sagittarius and posited in the ninth house gives him vitality, energy and force, independence and enthusiasm. Sagittarians strive for the highest: they hate dishonesty and meanness. The Sun trine Jupiter tends to financial success and actends to financial success and accounts for a large part of his fame. The Sun sextile Saturn gives him perserverance, tact and self-control. Saturn in Aquarius gives staunch friendships with important people. His Moon, well aspected and strongly placed, is favorable to public life and popularity. Mercury conjoined to the rising Uranus gives versatility and uniqueness of ideas. Mr. Reed frankly states that he is forever pursued by that bugaboo of all creators—the absolute necessity of a bright

This eloquent demonstration is the answer to any person who would destroy any of the safeguards to the individual which we have erected in America. The A. That is why the origin and background of this Tampa trial makes us keenly attentive to what happens in the courtroom.

"My information is that, to date, there have been no indications of any laxity or subversion of justice in the trial. This is all any citizen may legitimately demand, but this we do demand, vigorously and openly. In these days of world uncertainty and peril, we believe Americans should zealously look to their constitutional rights."

COURT ASKED TO DELAY

WASHINGTON, March 27.—(A)—
The government urged the supreme court today to refrain from passing on the constitutionality of the public utility holding company act until its case against the Electric Bond & Share system can be appealed.

Solicitor-General Stanley Reed asserted that a pending request for a ruling filed by Burco, Inc., of Baltimore, against the American States Public Service Company, had "been presented after collaboration and the litigation was not truly adversary."

The court is expected to announce Monday whether it will grant the Burco petition. If it does, a decision may be forthcoming by early June. If it does not, a ruling on the legislation will be deferred until the term beginning next October.

liam Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, vigorously today asserted his intention to withdraw the federation convention from Tampa, unless the trial of the men accused of the murder of Joseph Shoemaker is "fairly, openly, diligently and honestly conducted." The case was turned over the jury yesterday at 12:15 o'clock. The only word during the afternoon was when Judge Underwood sent a marshal in to learn if the deadlock was caused by indecision over fact or law. The answer was brief:
